United for Quality Care

Dear

Believe it or not, our state's Public Records Act has a loophole that lets anyone obtain our personal contact information.

And it's happened. Caregivers across the state have been targeted by the Freedom Foundation, an extremist group that lobbied against funding the raises in our union contract and opposed caregivers getting a retirement benefit. They have no respect for our work and only want to promote their extreme agenda: at our doors, they've tried to bully us, have often refused to leave when asked, and have even tried to talk to our clients against their wishes.

The Legislature needs to close this dangerous loophole so that caregivers and other public service workers like us can do our jobs without fear of harassment.
